beyond new media discourse and critique in a polymediated age examines a host of differing positions on media in order to explore how those positions can inform one another and build a basis for future engagements with media theory research and practice herbig herrmann and tyma have brought together a number of media scholars with differing paradigmatic backgrounds to debate the relative applicability of existing theories and in doing so develop a new approach polymediation each contributor's disciplinary background is diverse spanning interpersonal communication media studies organizational communication instructional design rhetoric mass communication gender studies popular culture studies informatics and persuasion although each of these scholars brings with them a unique perspective on media's role in people's lives what binds them together is the belief that meaningful discourse about media must be an ongoing conversation that is open to critique and revision in a rapidly changing mediated culture by studying media in a polymediated way beyond new media addresses more completely our complex relationship to media in our everyday lives do the new asian economies encourage gender equality ann brooks provides a unique insight into this question by assessing the impact of the new economy and the changing labour market on women in asia theoretical debates around globalization gender and social change are combined with empirical research on professional women in two cosmopolitan cities hong kong and singapore the author's research shows that even in such cosmopolitan cities where women tend to have a strong advantage there is a new dynamic of inequality this makes the examination of women's labour market participation and ambition in these environments very different to previous research the research is set against the backdrop of southeast asia more generally and international comparisons are also drawn it will be of interest to scholars in sociology economics gender studies business studies and asian studies in this carefully thought through anthology bole butake brings cameronian poets of different generations gender regions backgrounds and interests into conversation not only among themselves but more especially with poets from other parts of africa and the world this is a testament on the universality of poetry it is an invitation for those in tune with poetry to reaffirm its magic and to spread the warmth of its embrace in celebration of a common and boundless humanity
